Los Indianos La Palma 2026

16th February 2026

The Indianos festival in La Palma is one of the most emblematic celebrations of the island's Carnival, reviving the era when emigrants returned from the Americas, especially Cuba, bringing with them new riches and customs. During this festival, the city fills with people dressed in white, evoking the elegance of yesteryear, while the traditional "powder battle" takes place, where attendees throw talcum powder at each other in a joyful and carefree atmosphere.

SANTA CRUZ DE LA PALMA

With Caribbean music, dancing, and humor, the Indianos blend tradition and La Palma's identity in a day full of nostalgia and celebration, symbolizing the return home and the reconnection with one's roots.

IN SANE FASHION MACRAME

In Sane Fashion wasn't born from a business plan, but from a profound inner drive and a creative awakening. It's an artistic project that unites fashion, craftsmanship, and consciousness, based on creating garments as carriers of energy, identity, and personal transformation. Behind the brand is Agge, an artist and designer for whom fashion is an art form, not mass production.

The brand's origins date back to Greece in 2021. It was there that the artist first encountered dresses created using the macramé technique. That encounter became a turning point: an intuitive, profound calling that gave her the inner certainty of having found her true creative path. The experience was so intense that she decided to shorten her stay in Greece and return earlier than planned to create her first artistic project.

INSANE FASHION MACRAME

Each dress is created with the same intention: not just to be a garment, but a vessel of meaning, energy, and inner transformation. The designs seek to empower the women who wear them, conveying strength, beauty, confidence, and a connection to their natural, authentic, and conscious feminine energy.

In Sane Fashion is deeply committed to sustainable and conscious fashion. The projects are created primarily from recycled materials: recycled ropes from production processes, textile scraps from the fashion industry (known as t-shirt yarn), fine thread curtains, and other reclaimed textiles. One of the most symbolic projects was a dress created from a mosquito net cut into thin strips, which was presented at one of the shows of Madrid es Moda, the official event of Madrid Fashion Week. Despite its short history, the brand has presented its collections on numerous occasions and has been recognized in Madrid, Barcelona, and the Canary Islands, solidifying its presence on the Spanish creative scene.

The name "In Sane Fashion" symbolizes the transition from chaos to consciousness, from "insane" to "in sane": from inner disorder to balance and harmony.

The brand's motto, "Wear your power, weave your story," expresses its philosophy: fashion as a tool for expression, transformation, and identity building, not as mere consumption.

The brand creates unique collections that include festival designs, beachwear, resortwear, ceremonial pieces, and haute-craft artistic creations. Each project is handcrafted, made to order, without mass production or seasonality. In Sane Fashion develops as a slow fashion brand, rooted in art, culture, and a conscious lifestyle, building its identity in the Canary Islands as a project with a local soul and international aesthetic.

U&G ESTER UGGIOSI

Ester Uggiosi is a journalist and television presenter with a professional career forged over time through experience, passion, and a personal vision of the world of entertainment and fashion. Her learning began many years ago when she started her career as an interviewer, honing her journalistic techniques in the field and developing a natural ability to listen and tell stories.

From there, her career evolved and was enriched by meeting and collaborating with Franco Battaglia, a key figure in her professional development in the fashion industry. This crucial experience allowed her to work at an internationally renowned agency with some of the best models, solidifying a deep love for aesthetics, style, and professional rigor.

Alongside her journalism career, her passion for television presenting has grown, and it now finds its full expression in her own show, Sotto Riflettori, which airs on LombardiaTv, channel 221 on Smart TVs. Sotto Riflettori is an interview program in which each episode tackles a different theme, presenting stories, personalities, and perspectives inspired by the content of Visto and Novella 2000, publications with which Ester Uggiosi collaborates. It's a project that combines information, entertainment, and storytelling, merging the roles of journalist and presenter.

However, fashion remains a constant throughout her life. It's a passion that also began in her family, thanks to a mother who, from a young age, embraced fashion with attention and refinement, instilling in her the importance of good taste—a value that Ester considers the true meaning of luxury. For her, luxury is not ostentation or wealth as an end in itself, but a metaphor for elegance, balance, and conscious style.

From this vision, the Milano Luxury Fashion Week project was born, a format that goes beyond a simple fashion show. Here, fashion engages with entertainment, music, singing, and dance, giving space to both emerging talents and established professionals. Each event is conceived as a comprehensive, dynamic, and captivating spectacle, capable of showcasing creativity from every angle.

Ester Uggiosi's U&G works with Italian and international brands, prioritizing Made in Italy, a choice that reflects her traditionalist spirit and her desire to give a voice to the many talented, though often little-known, Italian designers. Convinced of the excellence of Italian education—with institutions like the Istituto Marangoni among the most prestigious schools in the world—she firmly believes in the creative potential of our country.

Today, Ester continues along a path that unites her three great passions: journalism, fashion, and television presenting. Three worlds that, intertwined, give life to a personal, harmonious, and authentic language, capable of making each project more vibrant, interesting, and profoundly human.

Marina Yee

BEE(S) ... POWERFUL

The designer who gave soul to Belgian fashion. A singular voice within the group that changed the course of European fashion. She formed the Antwerp Six, the collective that brought Belgian aesthetics to shop windows around the world.

While some of her colleagues became global names, Yee chose creative silence, craftsmanship, and experimentation outside the mainstream. Her approach was clear: fashion should be conscious, not complacent. Before the word 'sustainability' became trendy, she already embodied it.

Since the 1980s, Yee explored upcycling as a poetic gesture: reconstructing garments, giving them a second life, and reimagining beauty from waste. In her world, sewing wasn't production, it was reconstruction.
